

THE UNIVERSITY of NORTH CAROLINA
GREENSBORO
Information Technology Services

The University of North Carolina at Greensboro's (UNCG) TeleLearning Center is committed to supporting the University's mission of teaching, research, and service by providing students, faculty, and staff with facilities, equipment, and technical assistance to communicate via two-way interactive video to a learning community beyond campus borders.

Stone Building - Room 183

TeleLearning Center

Uses

- Videoconferences
- Group presentations
- Webinars
- Thesis defenses
- Training
- Search committee interviews
- Recording presentations on DVD or VHS
- Interactive video classes
- DVD, VHS, and video and audio playback for large groups

Features

- Wireless connectivity
- Assisted listening capabilities (for the hearing impaired)
- Room 186 TeleLearning classroom (seats 41 persons)
- Room 169 Teleconference room (seats 5 persons)
- UNCG's Largest Speakerphone System (24 microphones, amplified speakers)

Hours of operation may vary daily with class or conference schedules. UNCG's TeleLearning and Teleconference Center is located in the lower level of the Stone Building. Directions are available on the TeleLearning website.

If you would like more information about the UNCG TeleLearning Center, or would like to schedule a class, a conference, or a tour, contact Lane Ridenhour, Program Coordinator and Video Manager at 336-334-3969.

<http://its.uncg.edu/TeleLearning/>